Disposable email vulnerabilities

- What is disposable email?
- Examples:
 - Dodgeit.com
 - Mailinator.com
- Benefits
 - Avoid SPAM
 - Maintain anonymity
 - Protect Privacy
 - RSS feeds so you can monitor the account

Disposable email vulnerabilities

☑ Application

- ☑ Register for web sites
- ☑ Short term email address for information
- ☑ Mailing lists to avoid SPAM

☑ What's the problem?

- ☑ Easily recognized and blocked
- ☑ No privacy with ANYTHING on the internet
- ☑ Your RSS feeds can easily be monitored by others just as easily as yourself.
- ☑ Vulnerable by nature

Disposable email vulnerabilities

Vulnerable by nature (A walkthrough - step 2)

- Vulnerable by nature because...
 - We easily found the information
 - Anyone can access it
 - Most people don't think it through
 - Cannot DELETE the confirmation messages/passwords
 - They never see the need to CHANGE their password
 - Follow-up attacks! (classic backdoor)

2600 Meeting This Friday!!

October meeting

StankDawg writes:

The october meeting looks like it will be one of the best ever. I really mean that. First of all, I have a little something that I may present myself on a new DDP project that we created that relates to an article of mine that may be in the next 2600. It will be pretty informal, but I might make a couple of slides for it.

More importantly, we will be having a special guest this month. LD@blo, from the DC305 meeting will be joining us. He is planning a brief presentation on the "Certified Ethical Hacking" course taught right here in South Florida. I have worked with LD@able on some projects in the past and both zer0db and I have attended the DC305 meeting. He is a good guy and very knowledgeable.

Hopefully, we will also have some news on the LAN party/r00t wars from PsyPete by then as well. I will be going to Phreaknic later in October, so that may be a topic for discussion. I will be playing with my new bluetooth enabled phone, which may lead to some bluejacking phun. I will have issue 3 of < BR > magazine for those of you who do not have it. Blacklisted411 magazine may be out by then as well. All-in-all, this meeting will have plenty of things learn and to talk about.

For those of you who expressed interest in coming to a meeting, this will be the one to come to! This will be a great meeting for first-timers. Feel free to stop by and give it a shot! You might like it!

Identity theft

Disposable email vulnerabilities

- What went wrong?
 - Don't assume people won't notice or look
 - Disposable email != Disposable account
 - Can always be backdoored
 - Original email still available
 - Request password change
 - Sites will begin to block these addresses
 - If an account is vulnerable, a site is vulnerable
 - Impersonate other people/identity theft can lead to better SE.
 - Webmasters don't want people with these stolen accounts, which are now, ironically, almost ANONYMOUS!

Disposable email vulnerabilities

Summary

- These services can be used, if you are careful while using them.
 - Do not use a disposable email account to create anything other than ANOTHER DISPOSABLE ACCOUNT!
 - Change passwords right away to block opportunistic people who are looking for you. This will not lock the backdoor.
 - Never tie the account to you or your handle since it can (and will) be Owned.

But there is an alternative...
